

SHORT BIOGRAPHY

KAYHAN BOLELLI (born February 11, 1982 in Canakkale - Turkey) is a Turkish pharmacist and Ph.D. faculty member in University of Ankara, Faculty of Pharmacy, Department of Pharmaceutical Chemistry. He graduated from University of Ankara, Faculty of Pharmacy, with bachelor degree in 2004; from Department of Pharmaceutical Chemistry of same faculty, with master of science degree in 2007; from same department, with doctorate of philosophy degree in 2016. He is working onto computer-aided drug design, organic synthesis, qualitative-quantitative structure-activity relationships and biological activities of heterocyclic compounds such as antimicrobial and antitumoral activities since 2004. At first the American Association of Pharmaceutical Scientists (AAPS) and the Royal Society of Chemistry (RSC) including is located more than 10 various scientific and social developments in membership, the European Association for Cancer Research (EACR) which serves as the Ambassador of Turkey. As a researcher in various national projects, Dr. Bolelli is currently working on an ongoing European Union project (CERIC). 2 books, 15 SCI of 22 publications, and over 100 oral and poster presentations. Dr. Bolelli has 12 national and international scientific journals serving as editor, associate editor and member of Editorial/Reviewer Board.